Summary of the students' course evaluations

The students' views are that the course is very well organized and very professional. The results of evaluation are only positive. One student would like even more teaching on references and how to cite sources, although there is a whole module devoted to this.

Summary of the evaluations of the teaching team

This was the first semester of the total restructuring of the course and the course being offered totally online. It has worked well.

Analysis

While I think it is problematic that very few students did the evaluation, I did get constant formative feedback in a more informal way daily. So, I can agree with this evaluation that the course was successful.

Action plan

One change that I am making for the next time the course is offered is to reorganise the CANVAS structure according to the new template offered via CAKL. I did this during the second half of the fall with another course and it was very successful, so I will do it for this course too.

Proposed revisions to the course syllabus

None

Information on course reports

The course report is an important instrument for the development of courses and programmes, as well as for guaranteeing student influence in this work. The Decision on the model for systematic education-related quality work at the Faculty of Education and Society (UTB 3.1-2017/410) indicates that course reports constitute the basis for the programme boards' efforts to systematically monitor the quality of the programme as a whole.

The Course evaluation process at the Faculty of Education and Society (UTB 3..2.2-2018/479) specifies what applies for the course report, including feedback to students.

The course report should include background information/key figures and a summary of the students' course evaluations, as well as analysis and an action plan together with any suggestions for revision of the course syllabus.

The course report is to be published in connection with other information about the course.
