Recommendations and priorities for the course development

Unfortunately, very few students followed the course this year. From the oral evaluation with the students, they opined that this could partially be the result of fellow staff claiming the course is “too difficult” and not worth the effort which, if true, I find contemptible behaviour from colleagues.

Otherwise, the oral evaluation was positive but with students admitting to primarily focusing on other courses.

The written course evaluation was answered by one student and the comments were positive. Also, the changes in assignments seems to have turned out well. No complaints from the students. I plan no changes for next year.
